Introduction and methodology

- This study analyzes the dreams shared by people all over the world within the open Dream for Earth initiative.
- A total of 1056 dreams from 61 countries were analyzed
- Dreams were posted at dreamforearth.com between May 17th – August 28th 2021.
- Video dreams were transcribed into text.
- Natural language processing was used to analyze the content of the collected dreams. Dreams with a similar content were clustered to reveal thematic and narrative patterns.
- Metadata, particularly location and category, were analyzed to reveal the geographic and thematic focus of the dreams.

The geographic distribution of the dreams

Dreams were submitted from 61 countries

Overarching narratives in the dreams from dreamforearth.com

The narrative landscape: metanarratives emerging from the dreams

- Using natural language processing techniques, the dreams were clustered based on the similarity of their content.
- This resulted in clusters of dreams expressing similar narratives, often cutting across categories, corresponding to hills in the landscape.
- These “metanarratives” are described on subsequent pages.

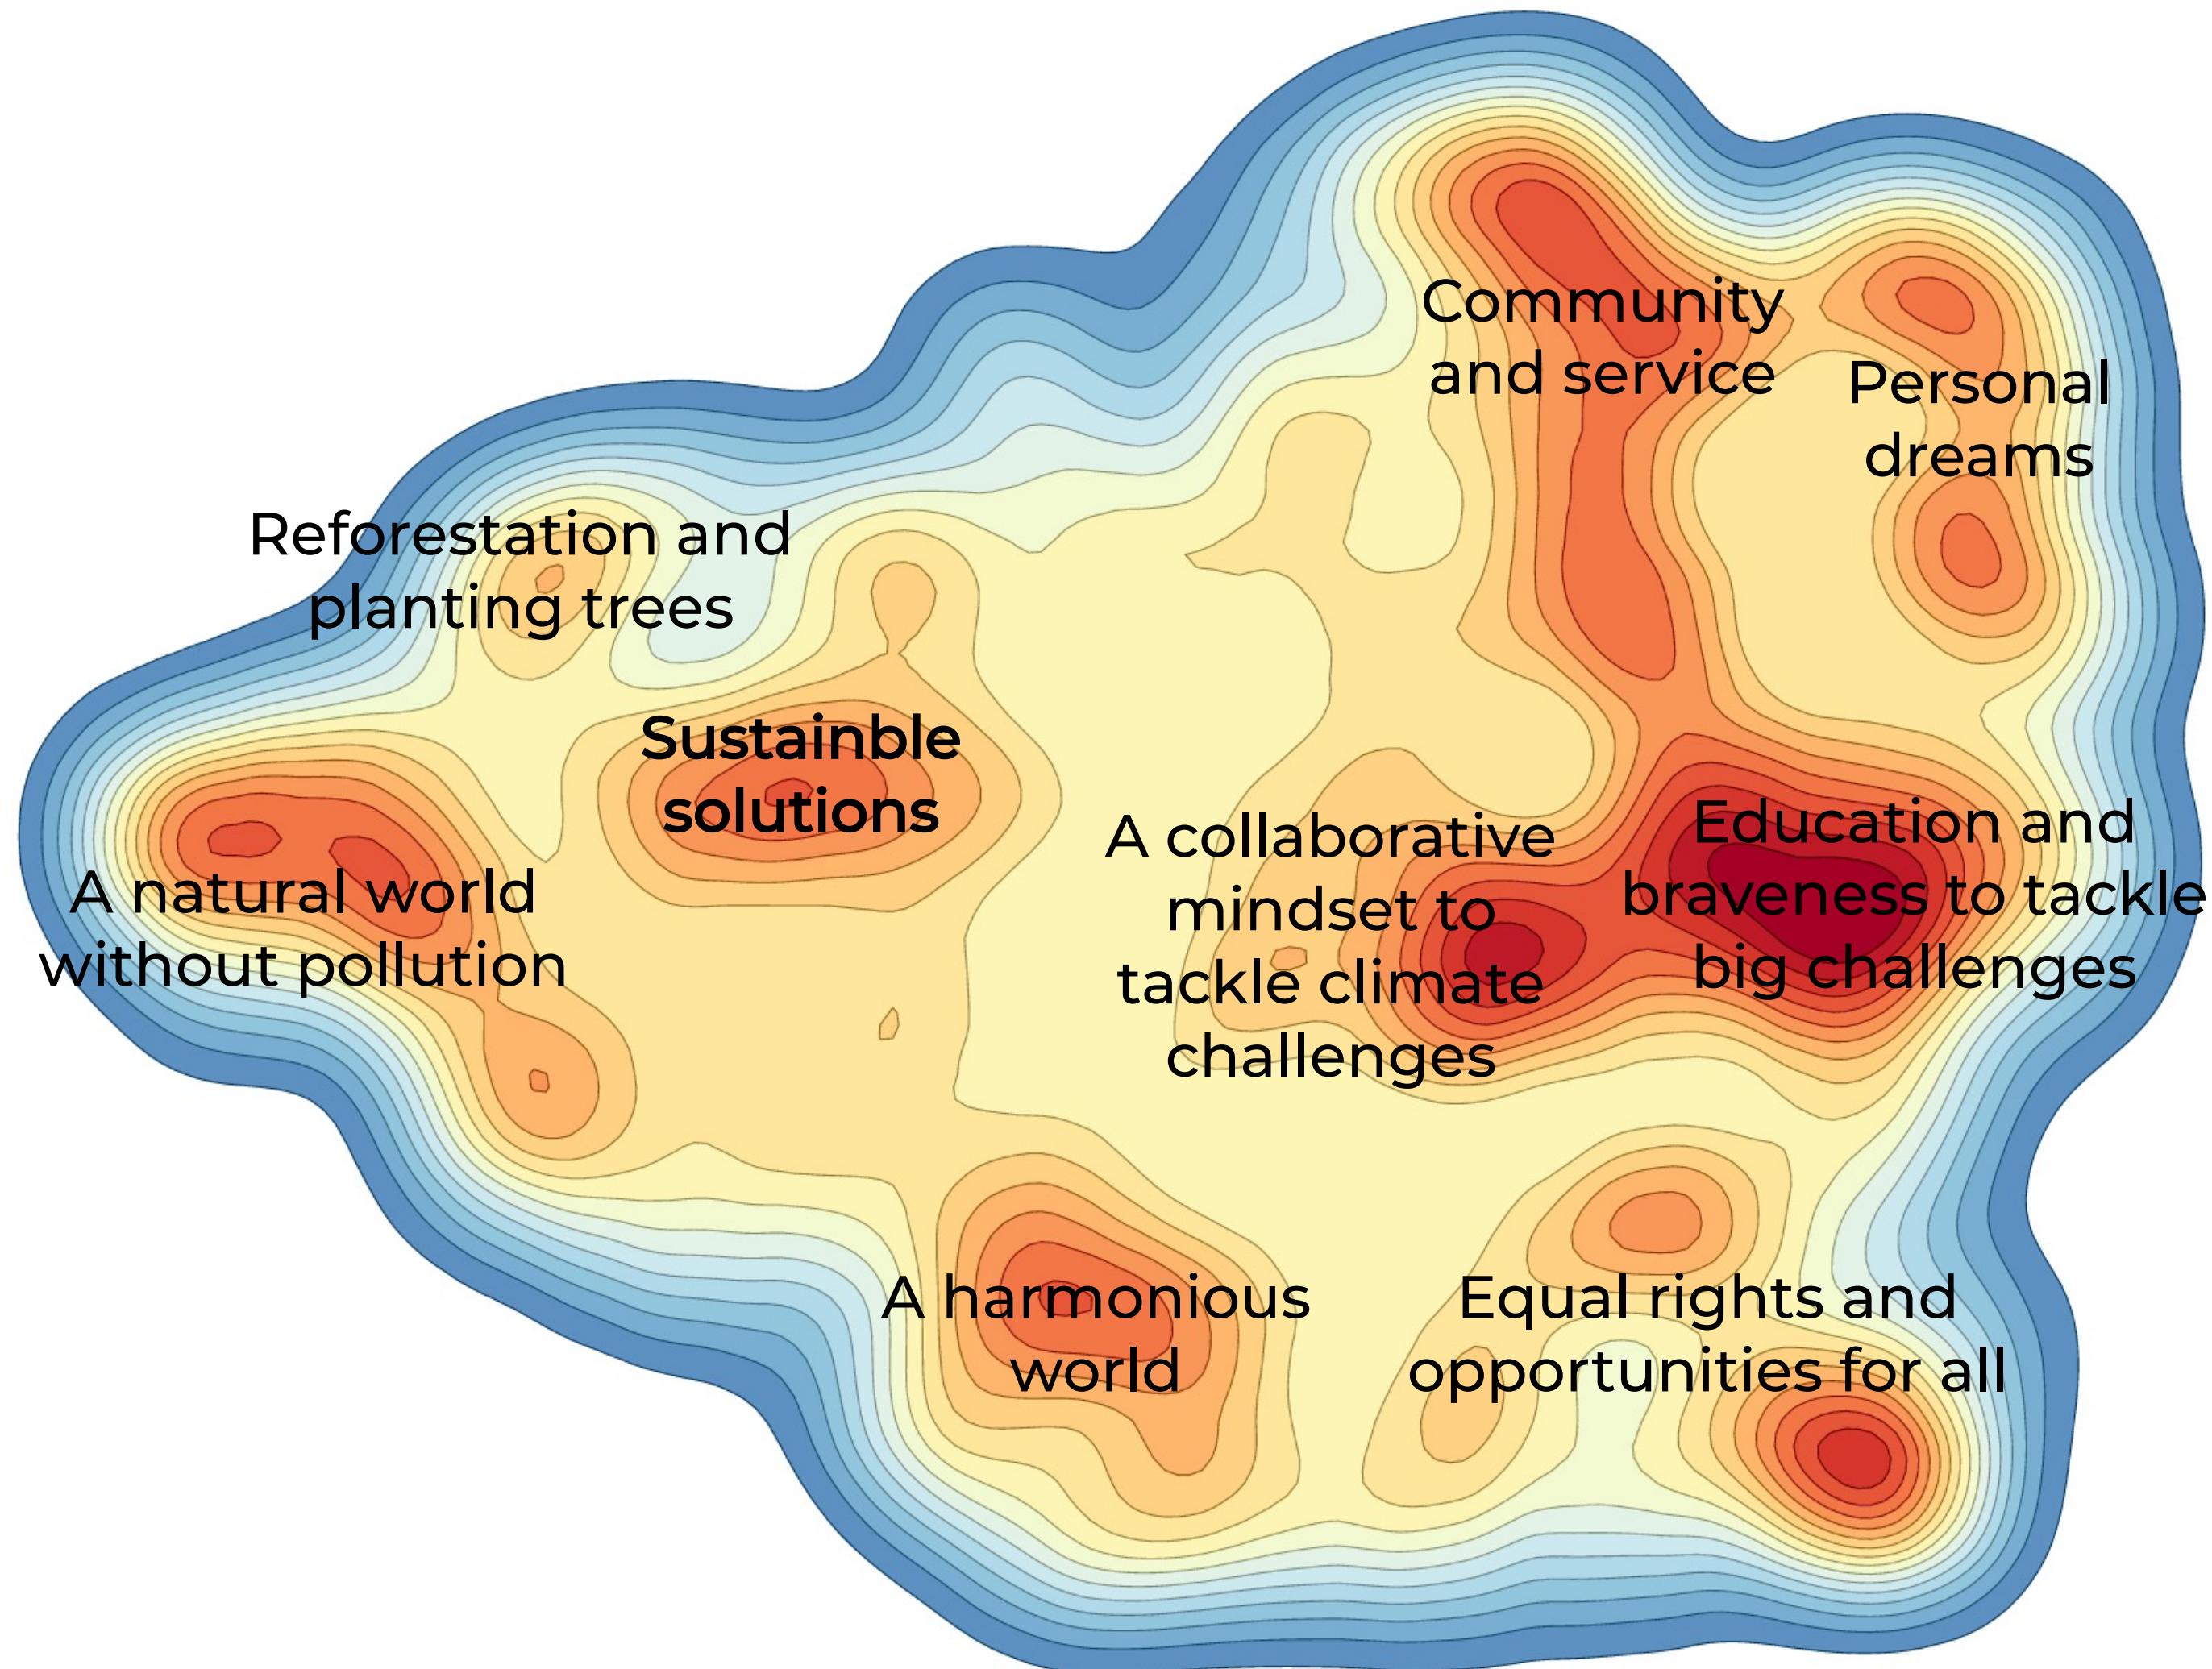

Narrative: A natural world without pollution

My dream is for a plastic free earth and no ocean pollution that cause fish to die. I dream of fresh air and beautiful trees and vegetation. I dream of a clean earth without garbage and industrial waste thrown all over. In my dream children are playing happily and there are no diseases due to earth pollution. Animals too wild and domestic are thriving since there is enough food and water for all and no wildlife poaching. (Kenya)

My dream is to keep the earth clean and green. I would really like to fine people who do bad to the earth like waste water, pollute, pollute air, water. And I would really like to fine people who do bad to the earth. (UAE)

Narrative: Sustainable solutions

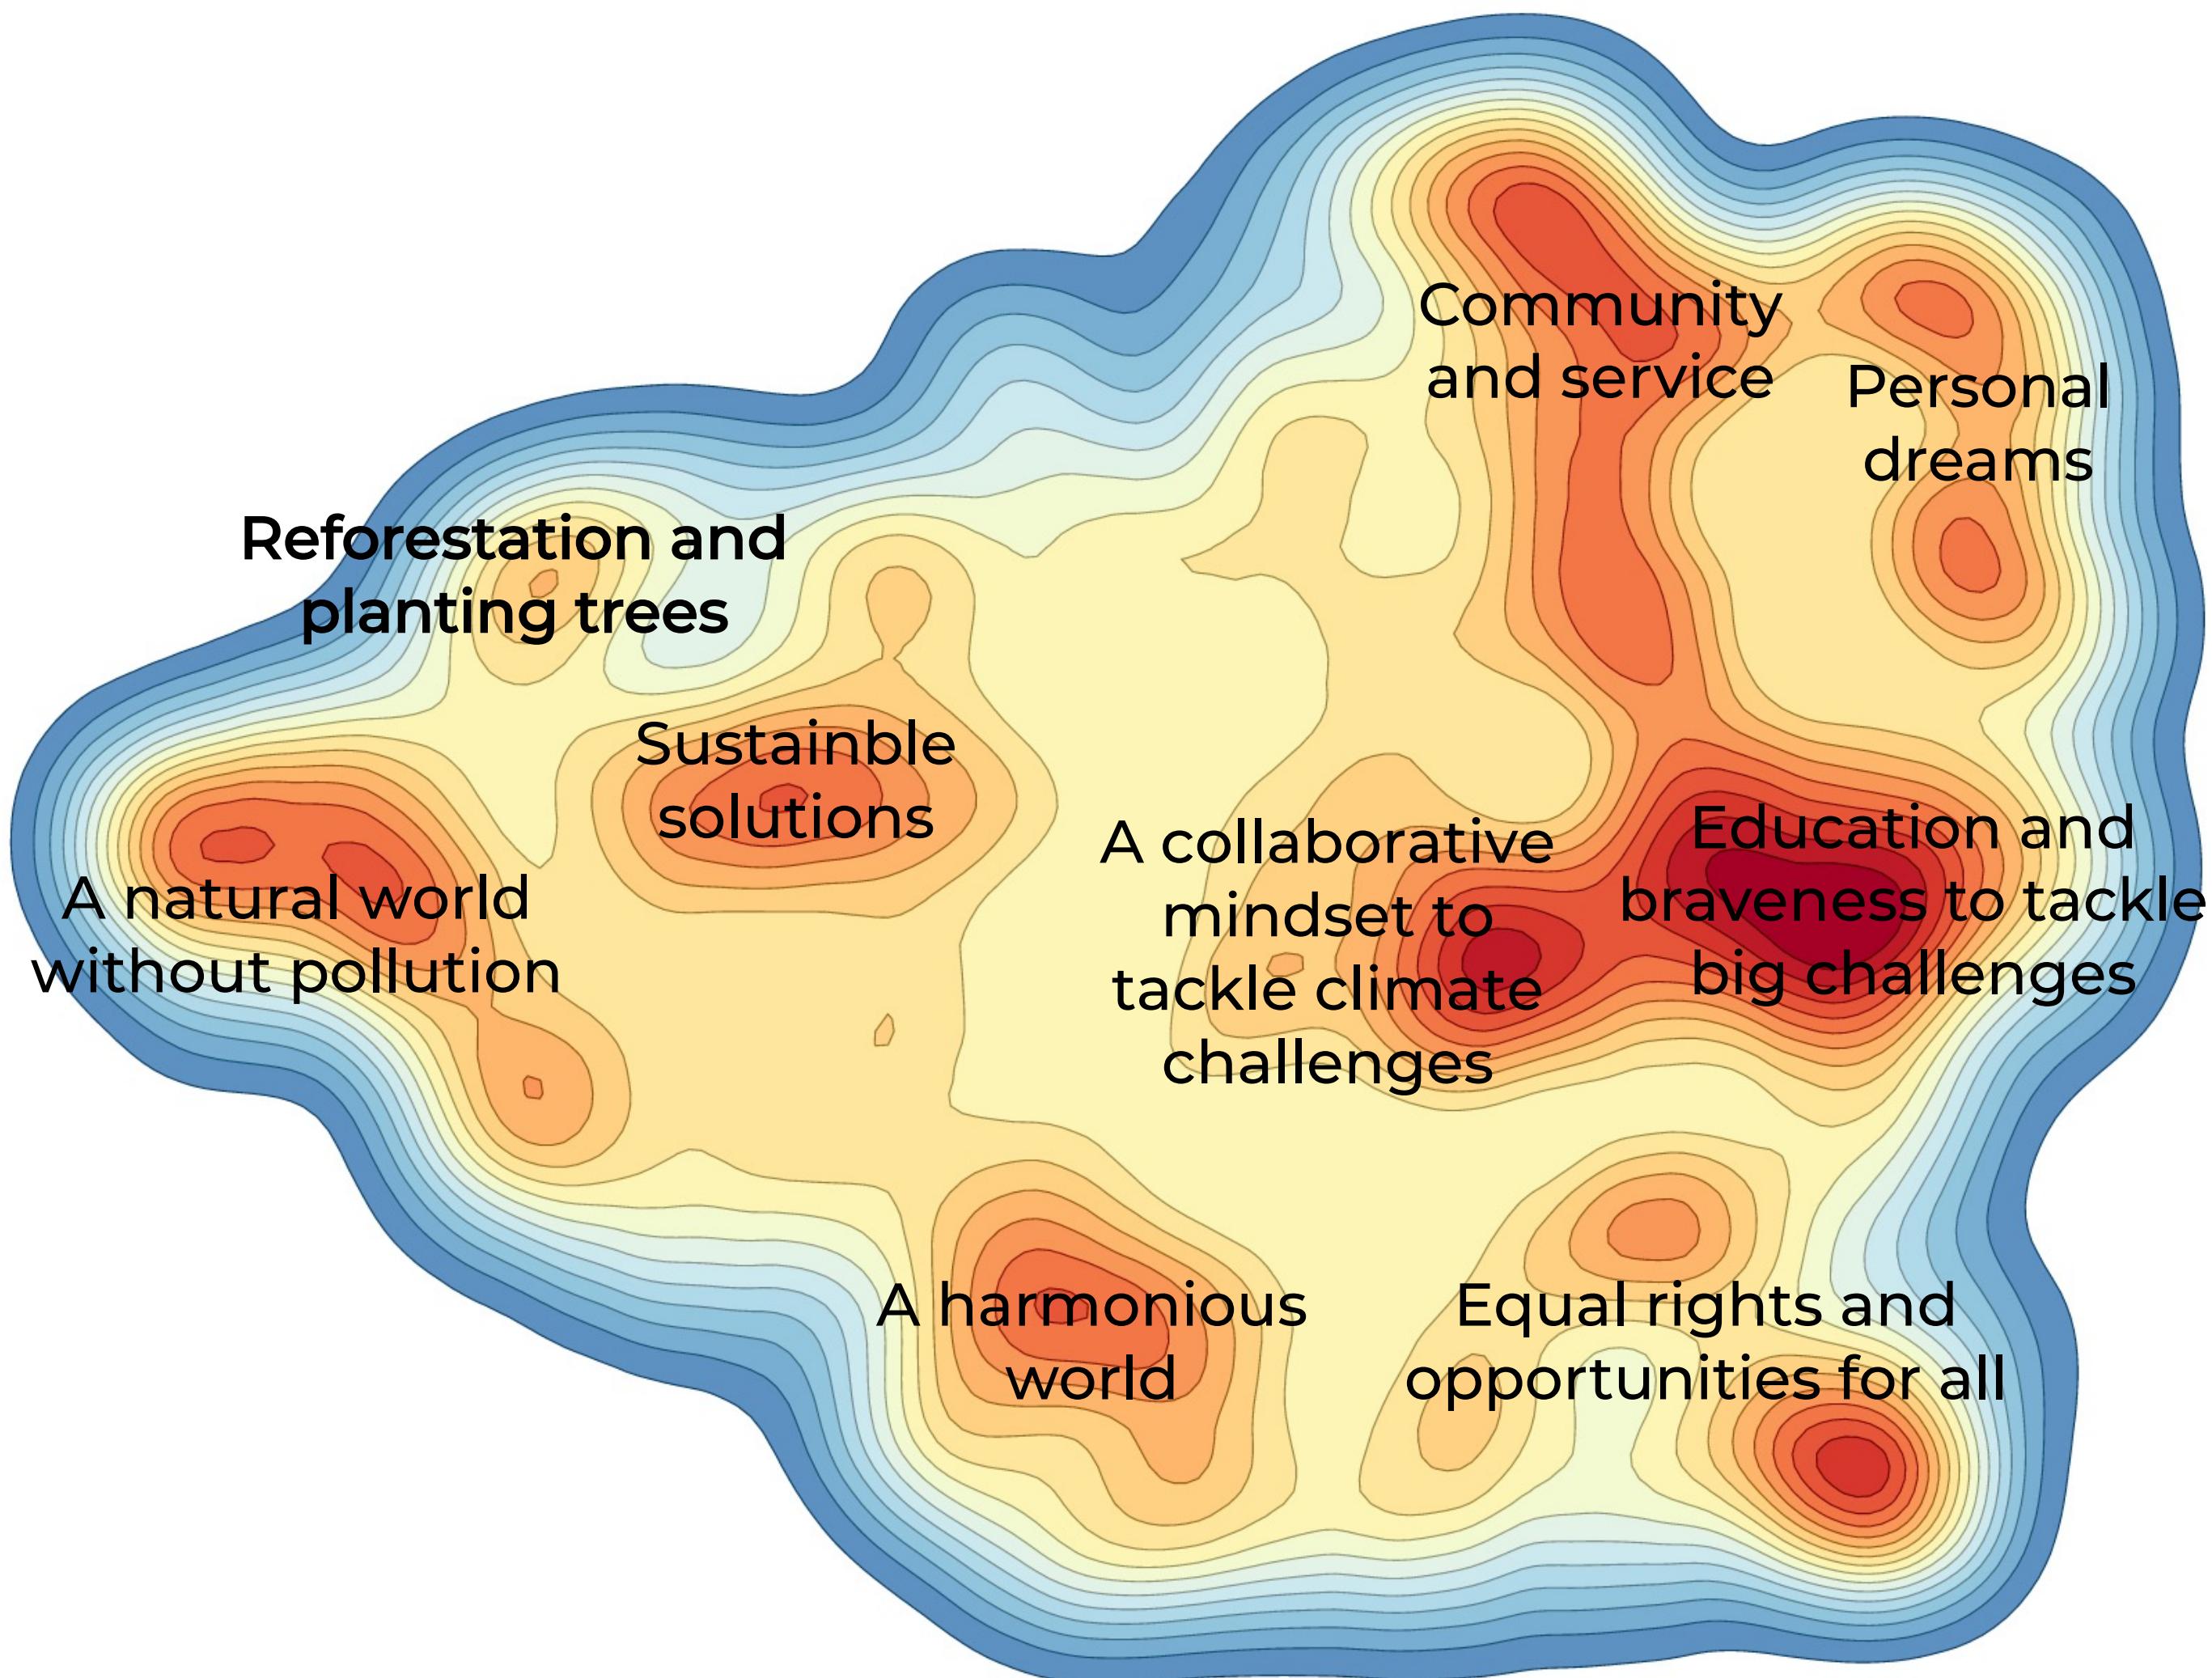

Morphing implementations of green architecture, building with eco-friendly materials that are biodegradable, and lastly, a future with more crossing bridges for animals on all highways and busy roads. (Kenya)

I dream of a future where we can harvest clean energy from our most abundant natural resources: water. (Singapore)

I dream of a more mobile and green city. Let's move in the city, but let's minimize our carbon footprint as we move. Let's take small steps to protect the environment and have a sustainable million-dollar impact. Let's save the environment from climate change with this effect. (Turkey)

Narrative: Reforestation and planting trees

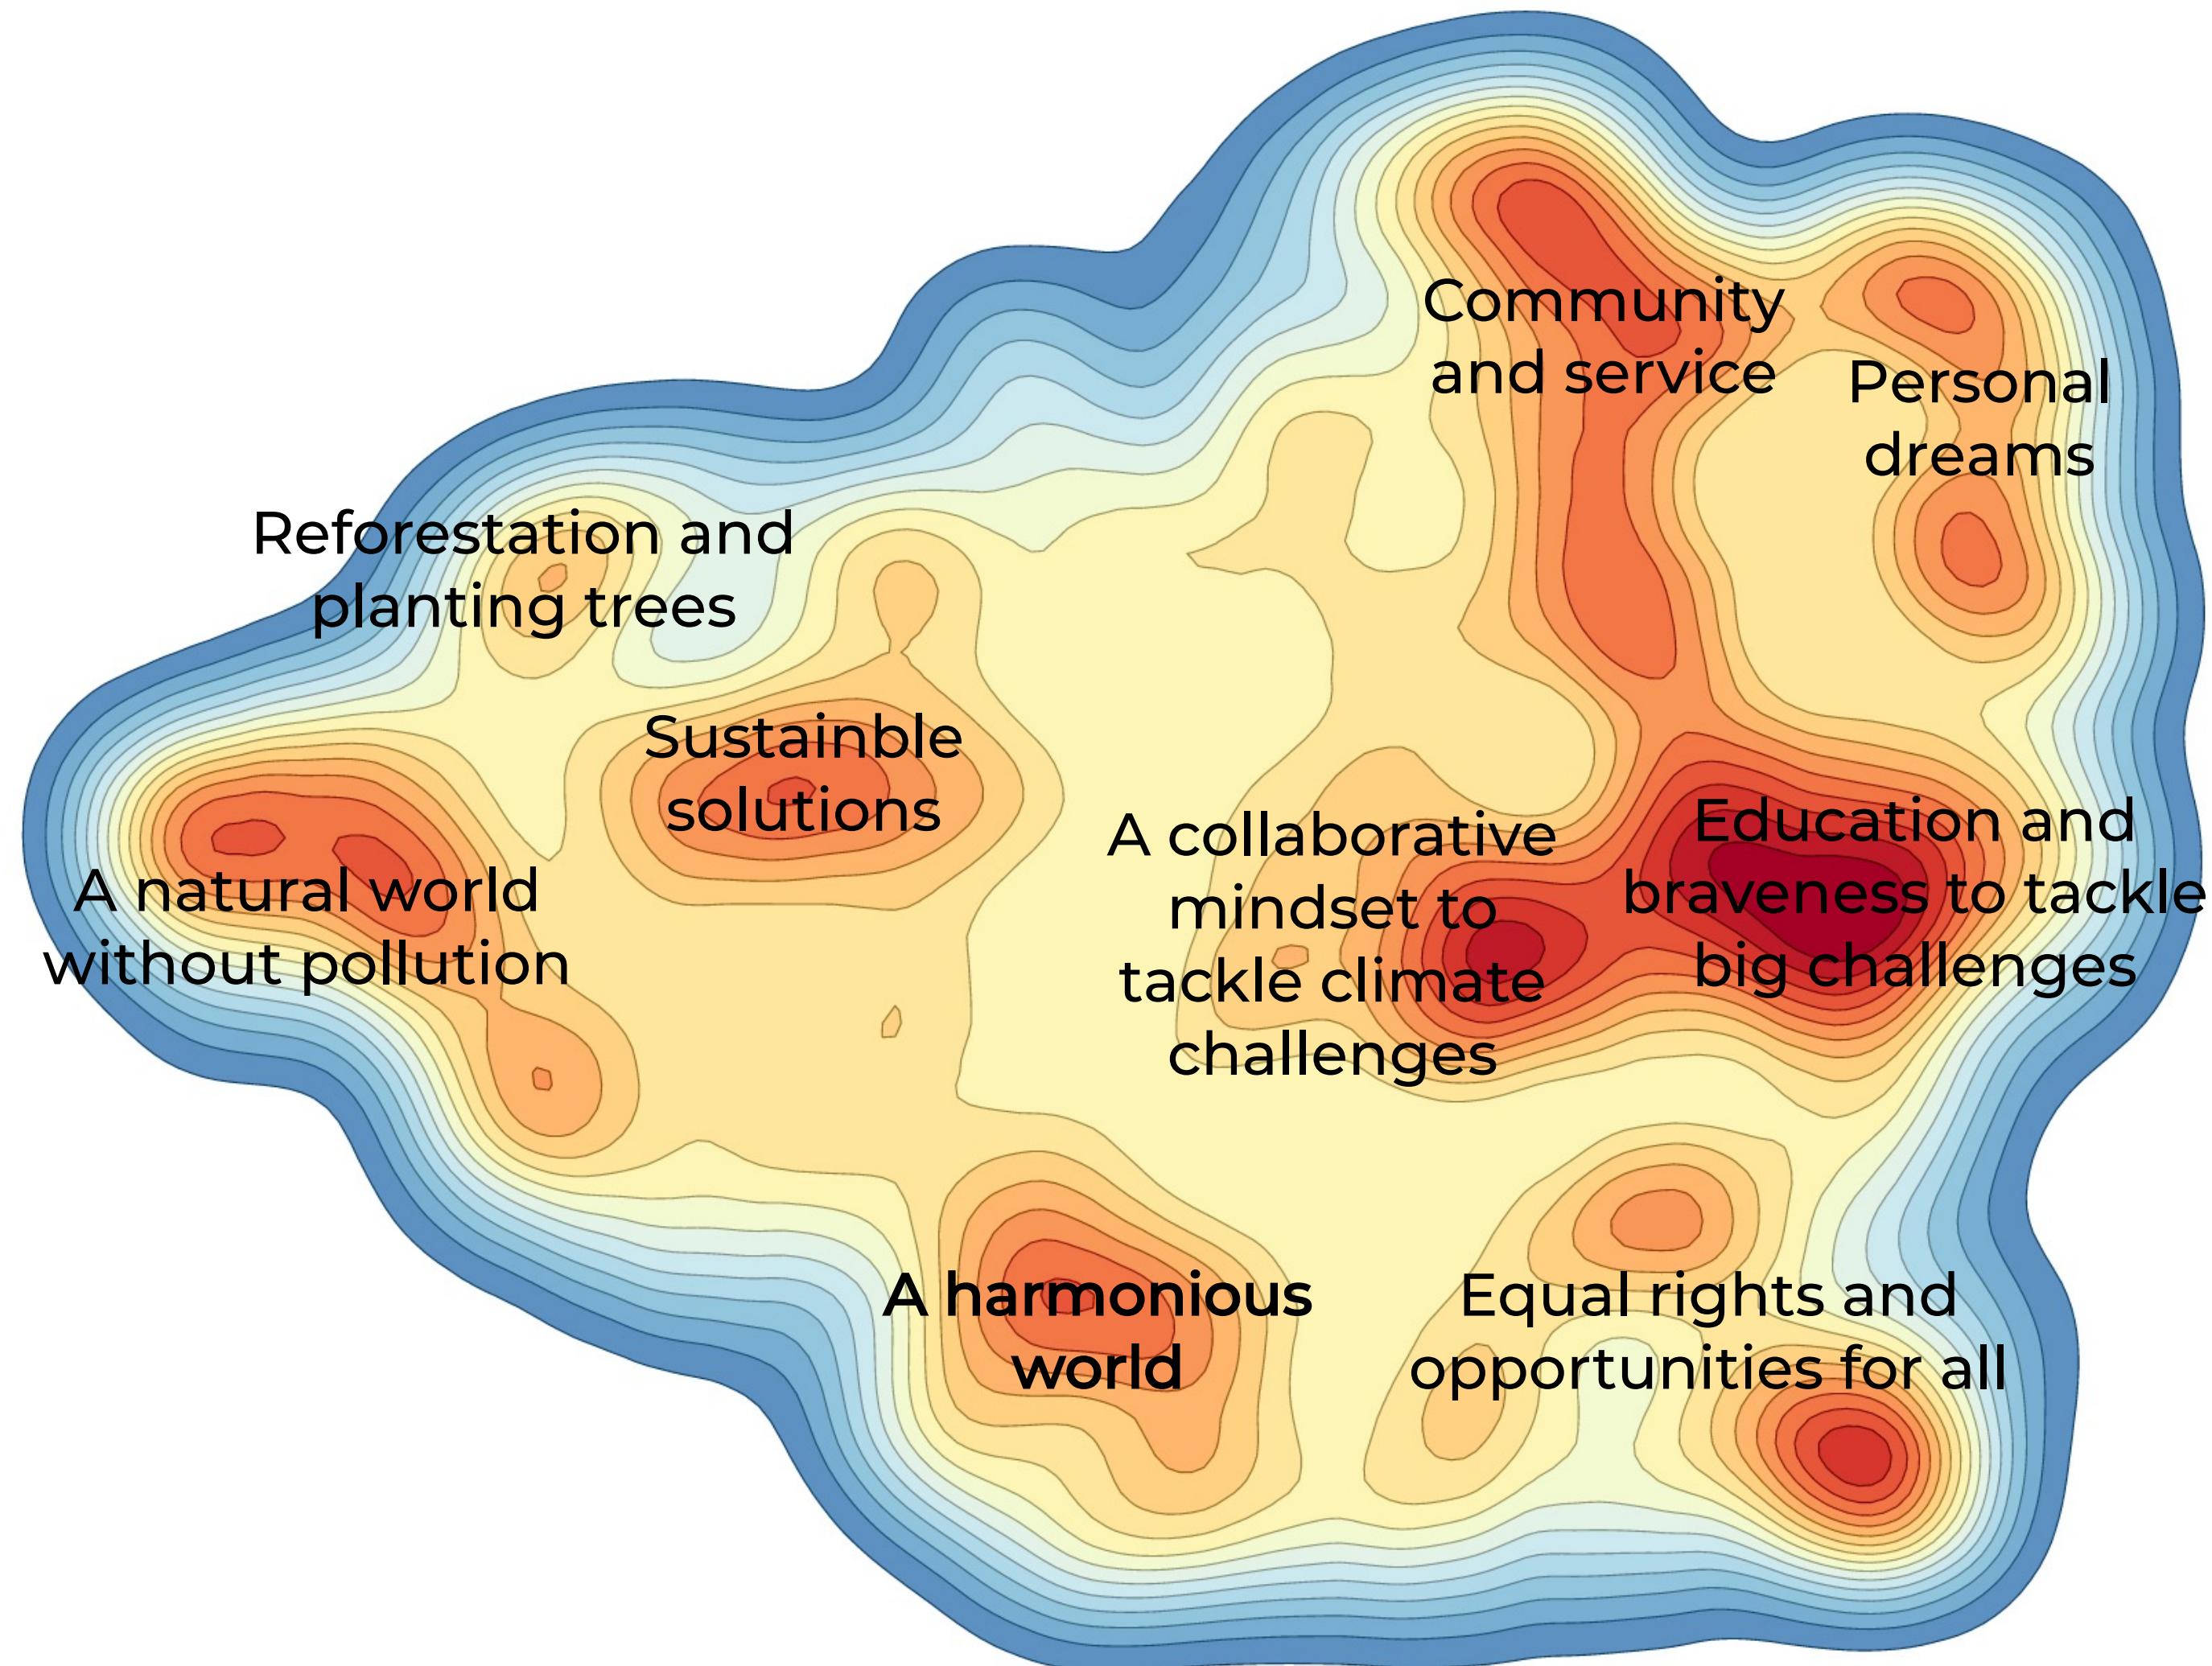

I dream of alleviating poverty and reducing global warming through tree planting.
(Nigeria)

I would like to also see the restoration of forest cover through practicing reforestation and deforestation and for the remaining forests to be protected through effective policy implementation. (Zimbabwe)

My dream is to plant a million trees in the western part of uganda. This will help on stopping global warming. (Uganda)

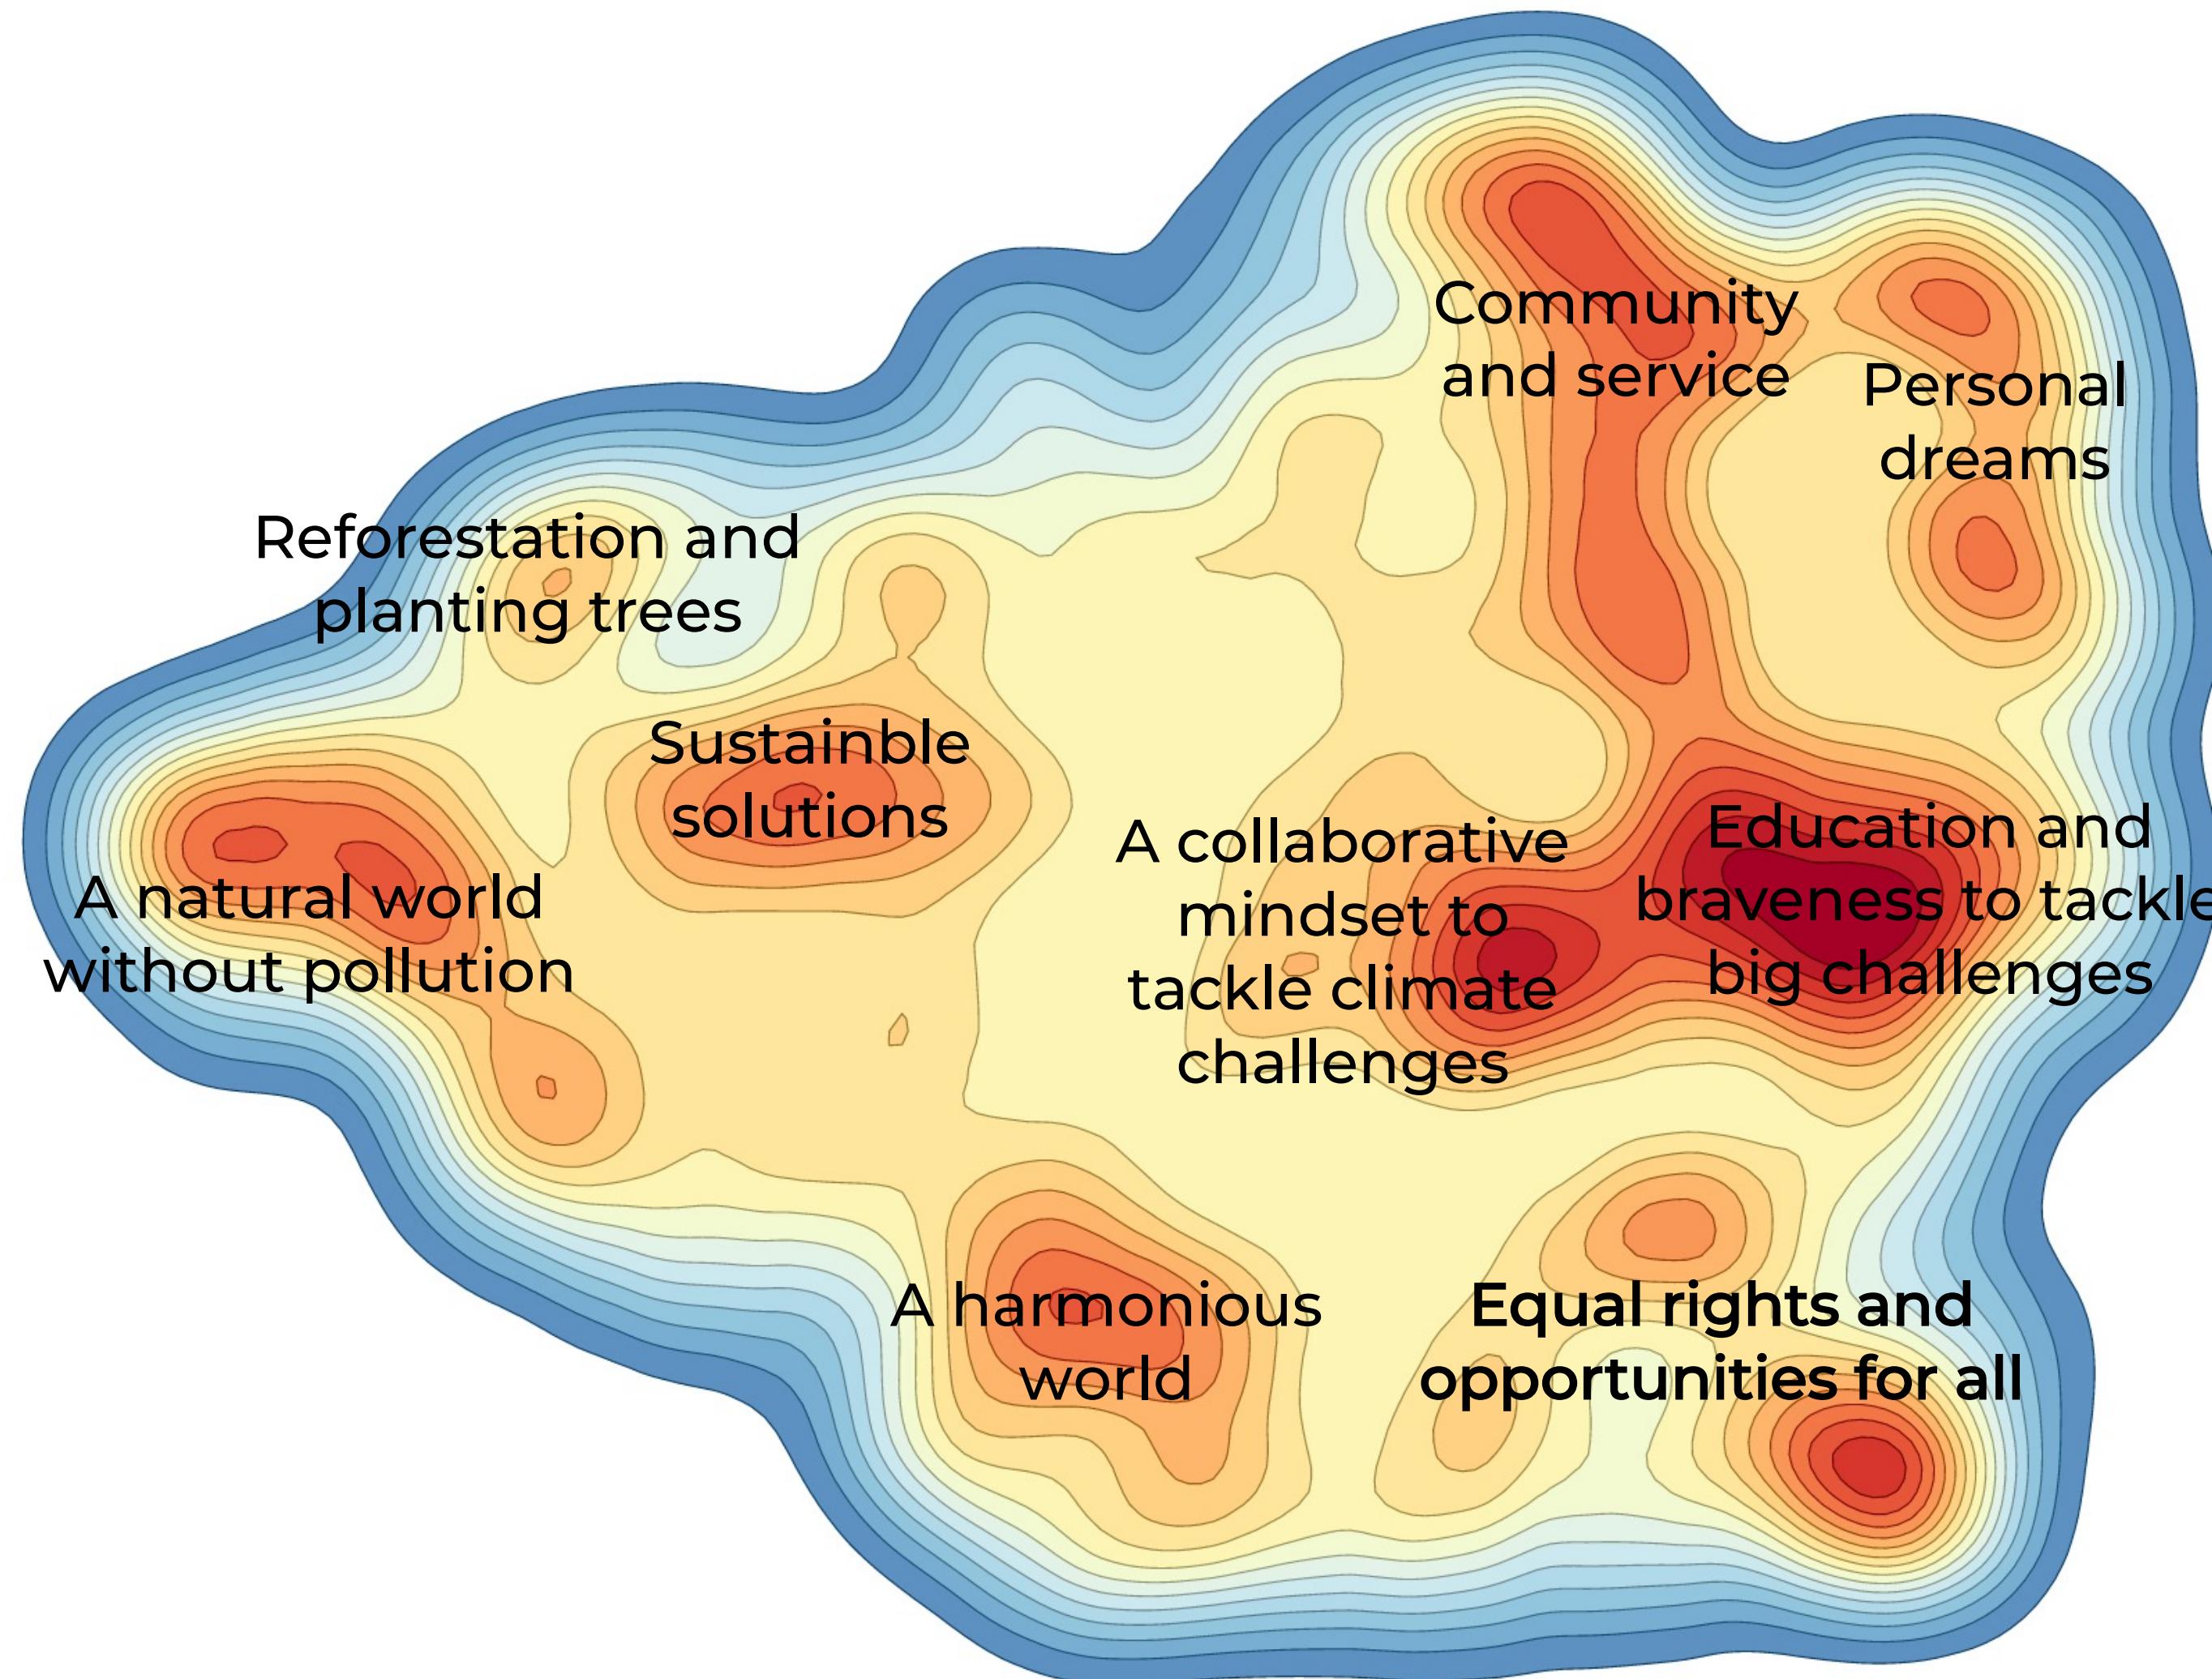

Narrative: A harmonious world

My big dream for the earth is a world full of peace, without any wars. I want to see happy people in the whole world. (Sweden)

My dream is to, E, end poverty in as many ways as we can and end hunger by charity. A, achieve a beautiful world and society by being responsible citizens. R, reduce the amount of pollution we create. T, take care of others and be thoughtful and loving to them. And finally, H, have a healthy lifestyle without other people suffering. (UAE)

Narrative: Equal rights and opportunities for all

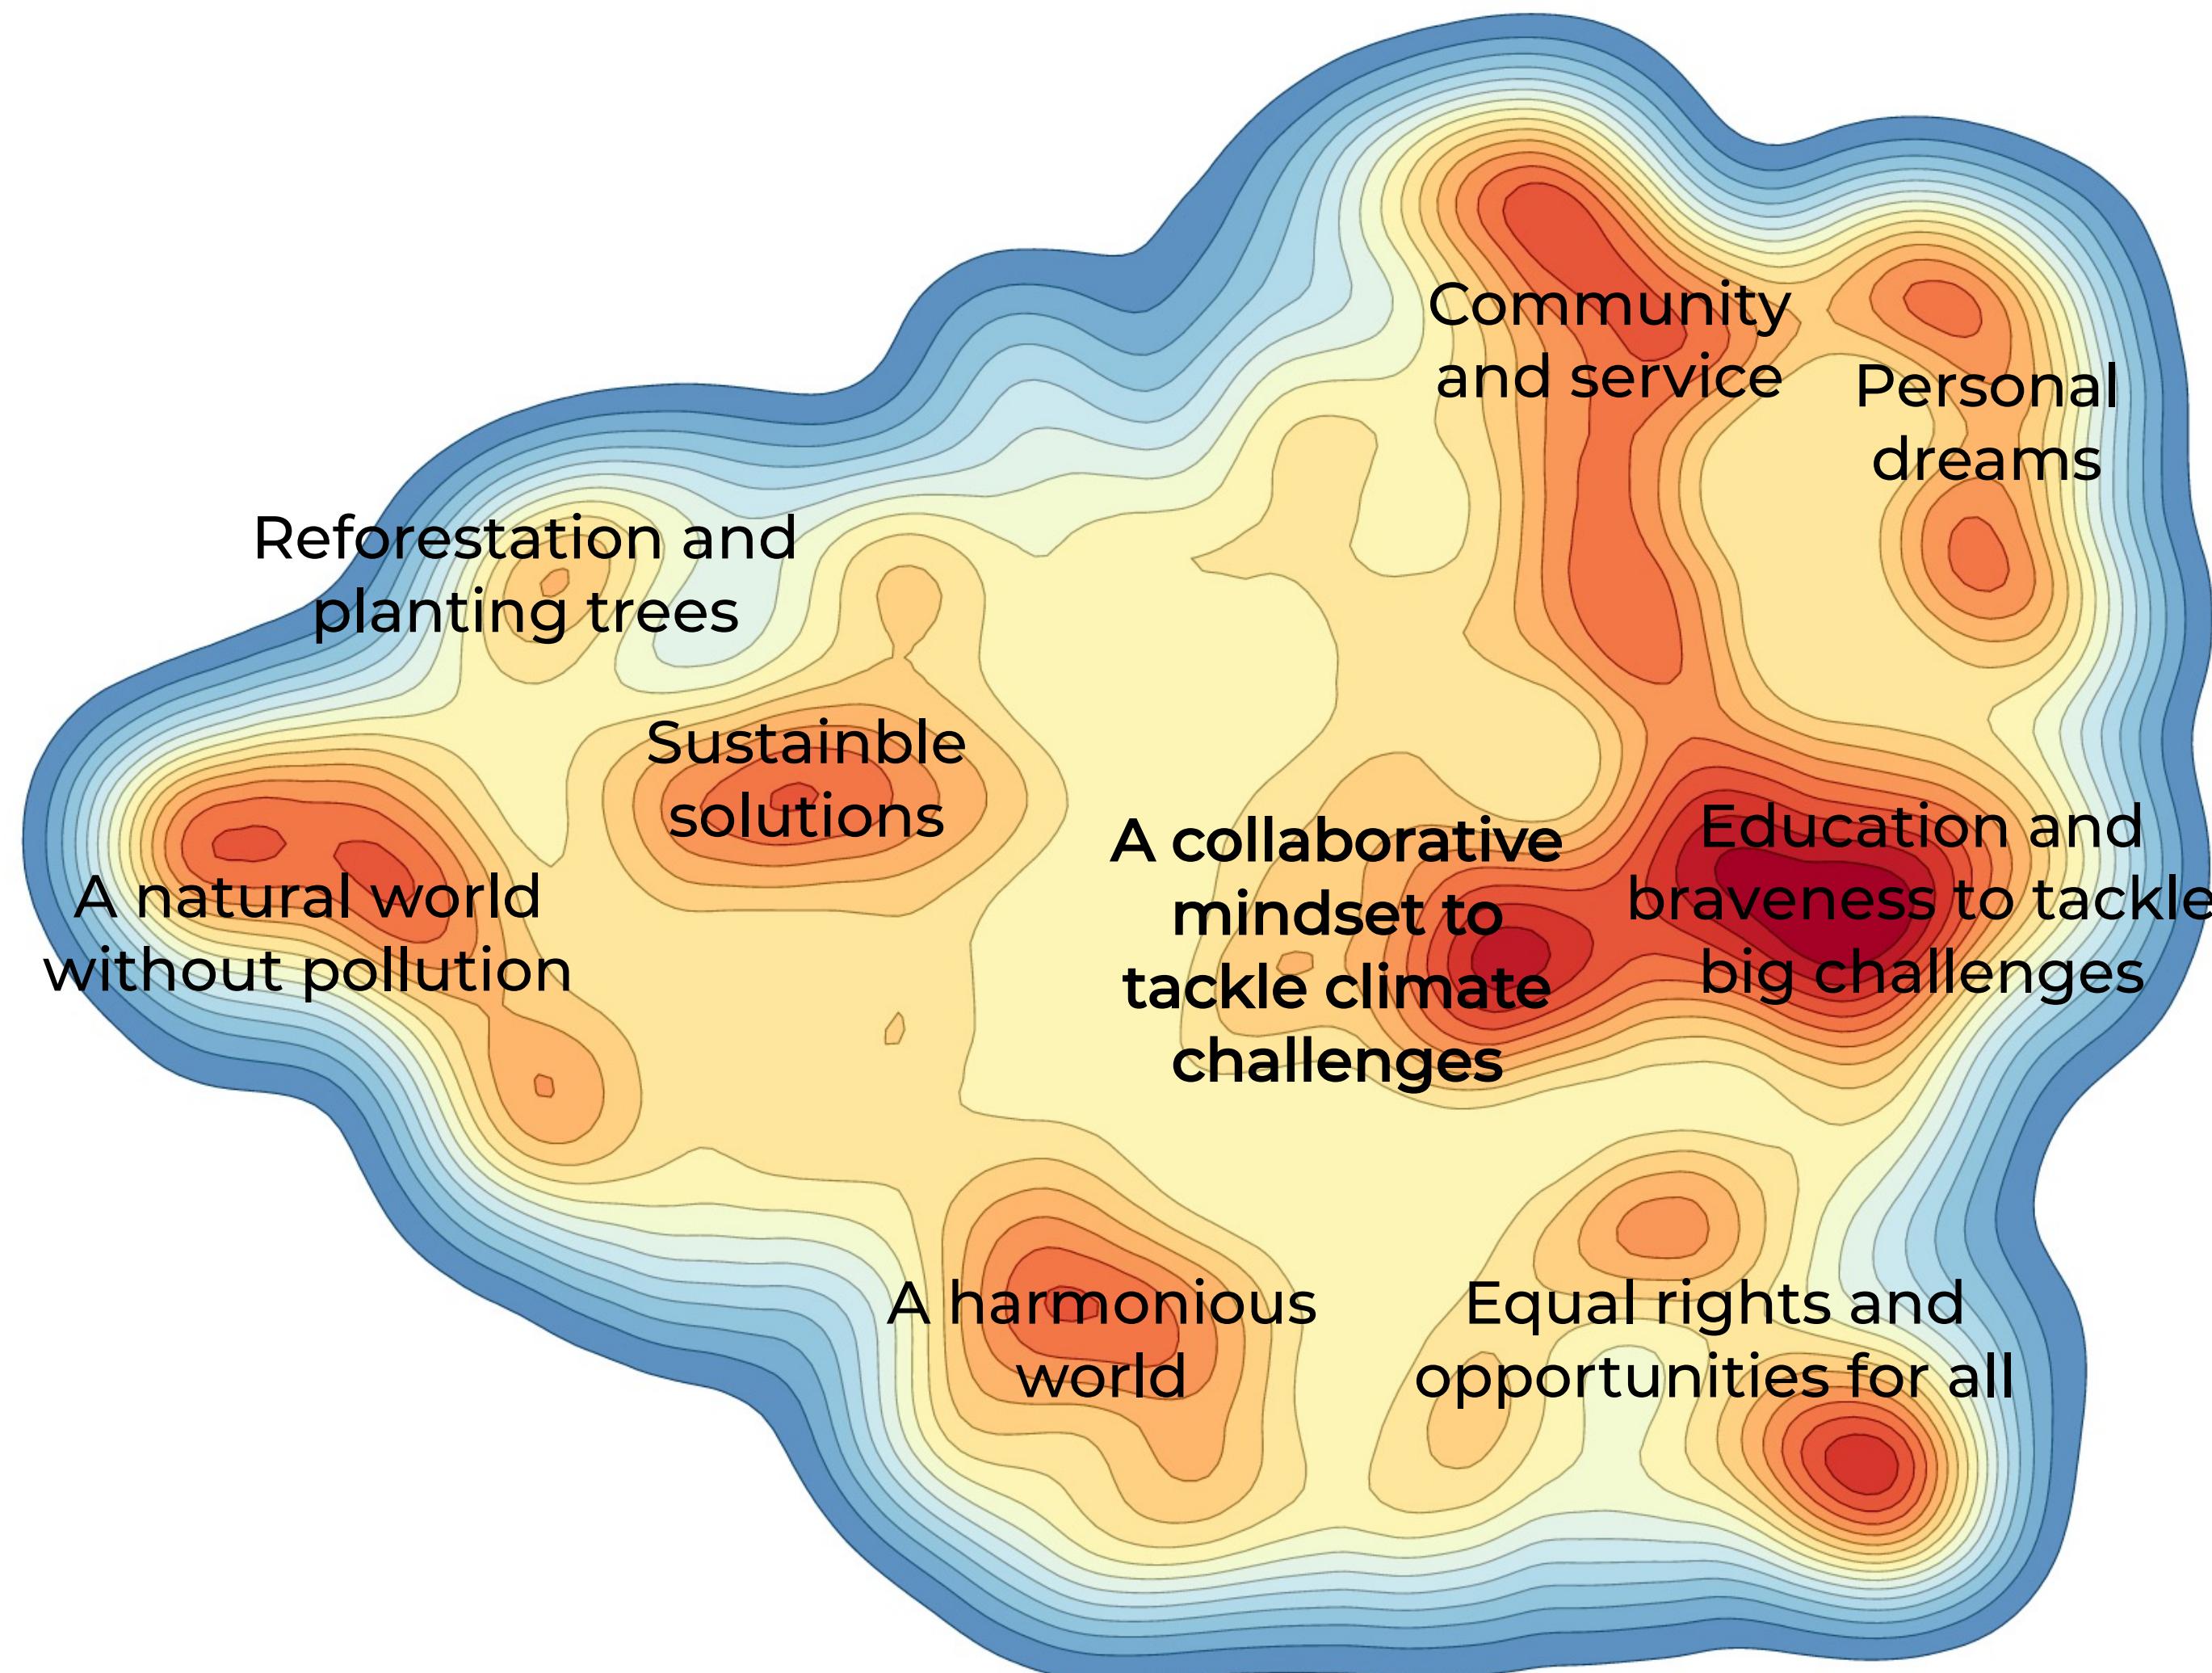

My dream is to live in a world free from arrogance, ego and hatred, where everyone will have equal rights irrespective of race, caste and gender. (Nepal)

My dream is that every child around the globe has food on their plate and clean water. Every child should have the right to quality education, good healthcare, and a clean planet. (UAE)

My dream is to live in a world where young people, irrespective of their social and economic background, have access to the best education and the best environment for them to grow and flourish. (United States)

Narrative: A collaborative mindset to tackle climate challenges

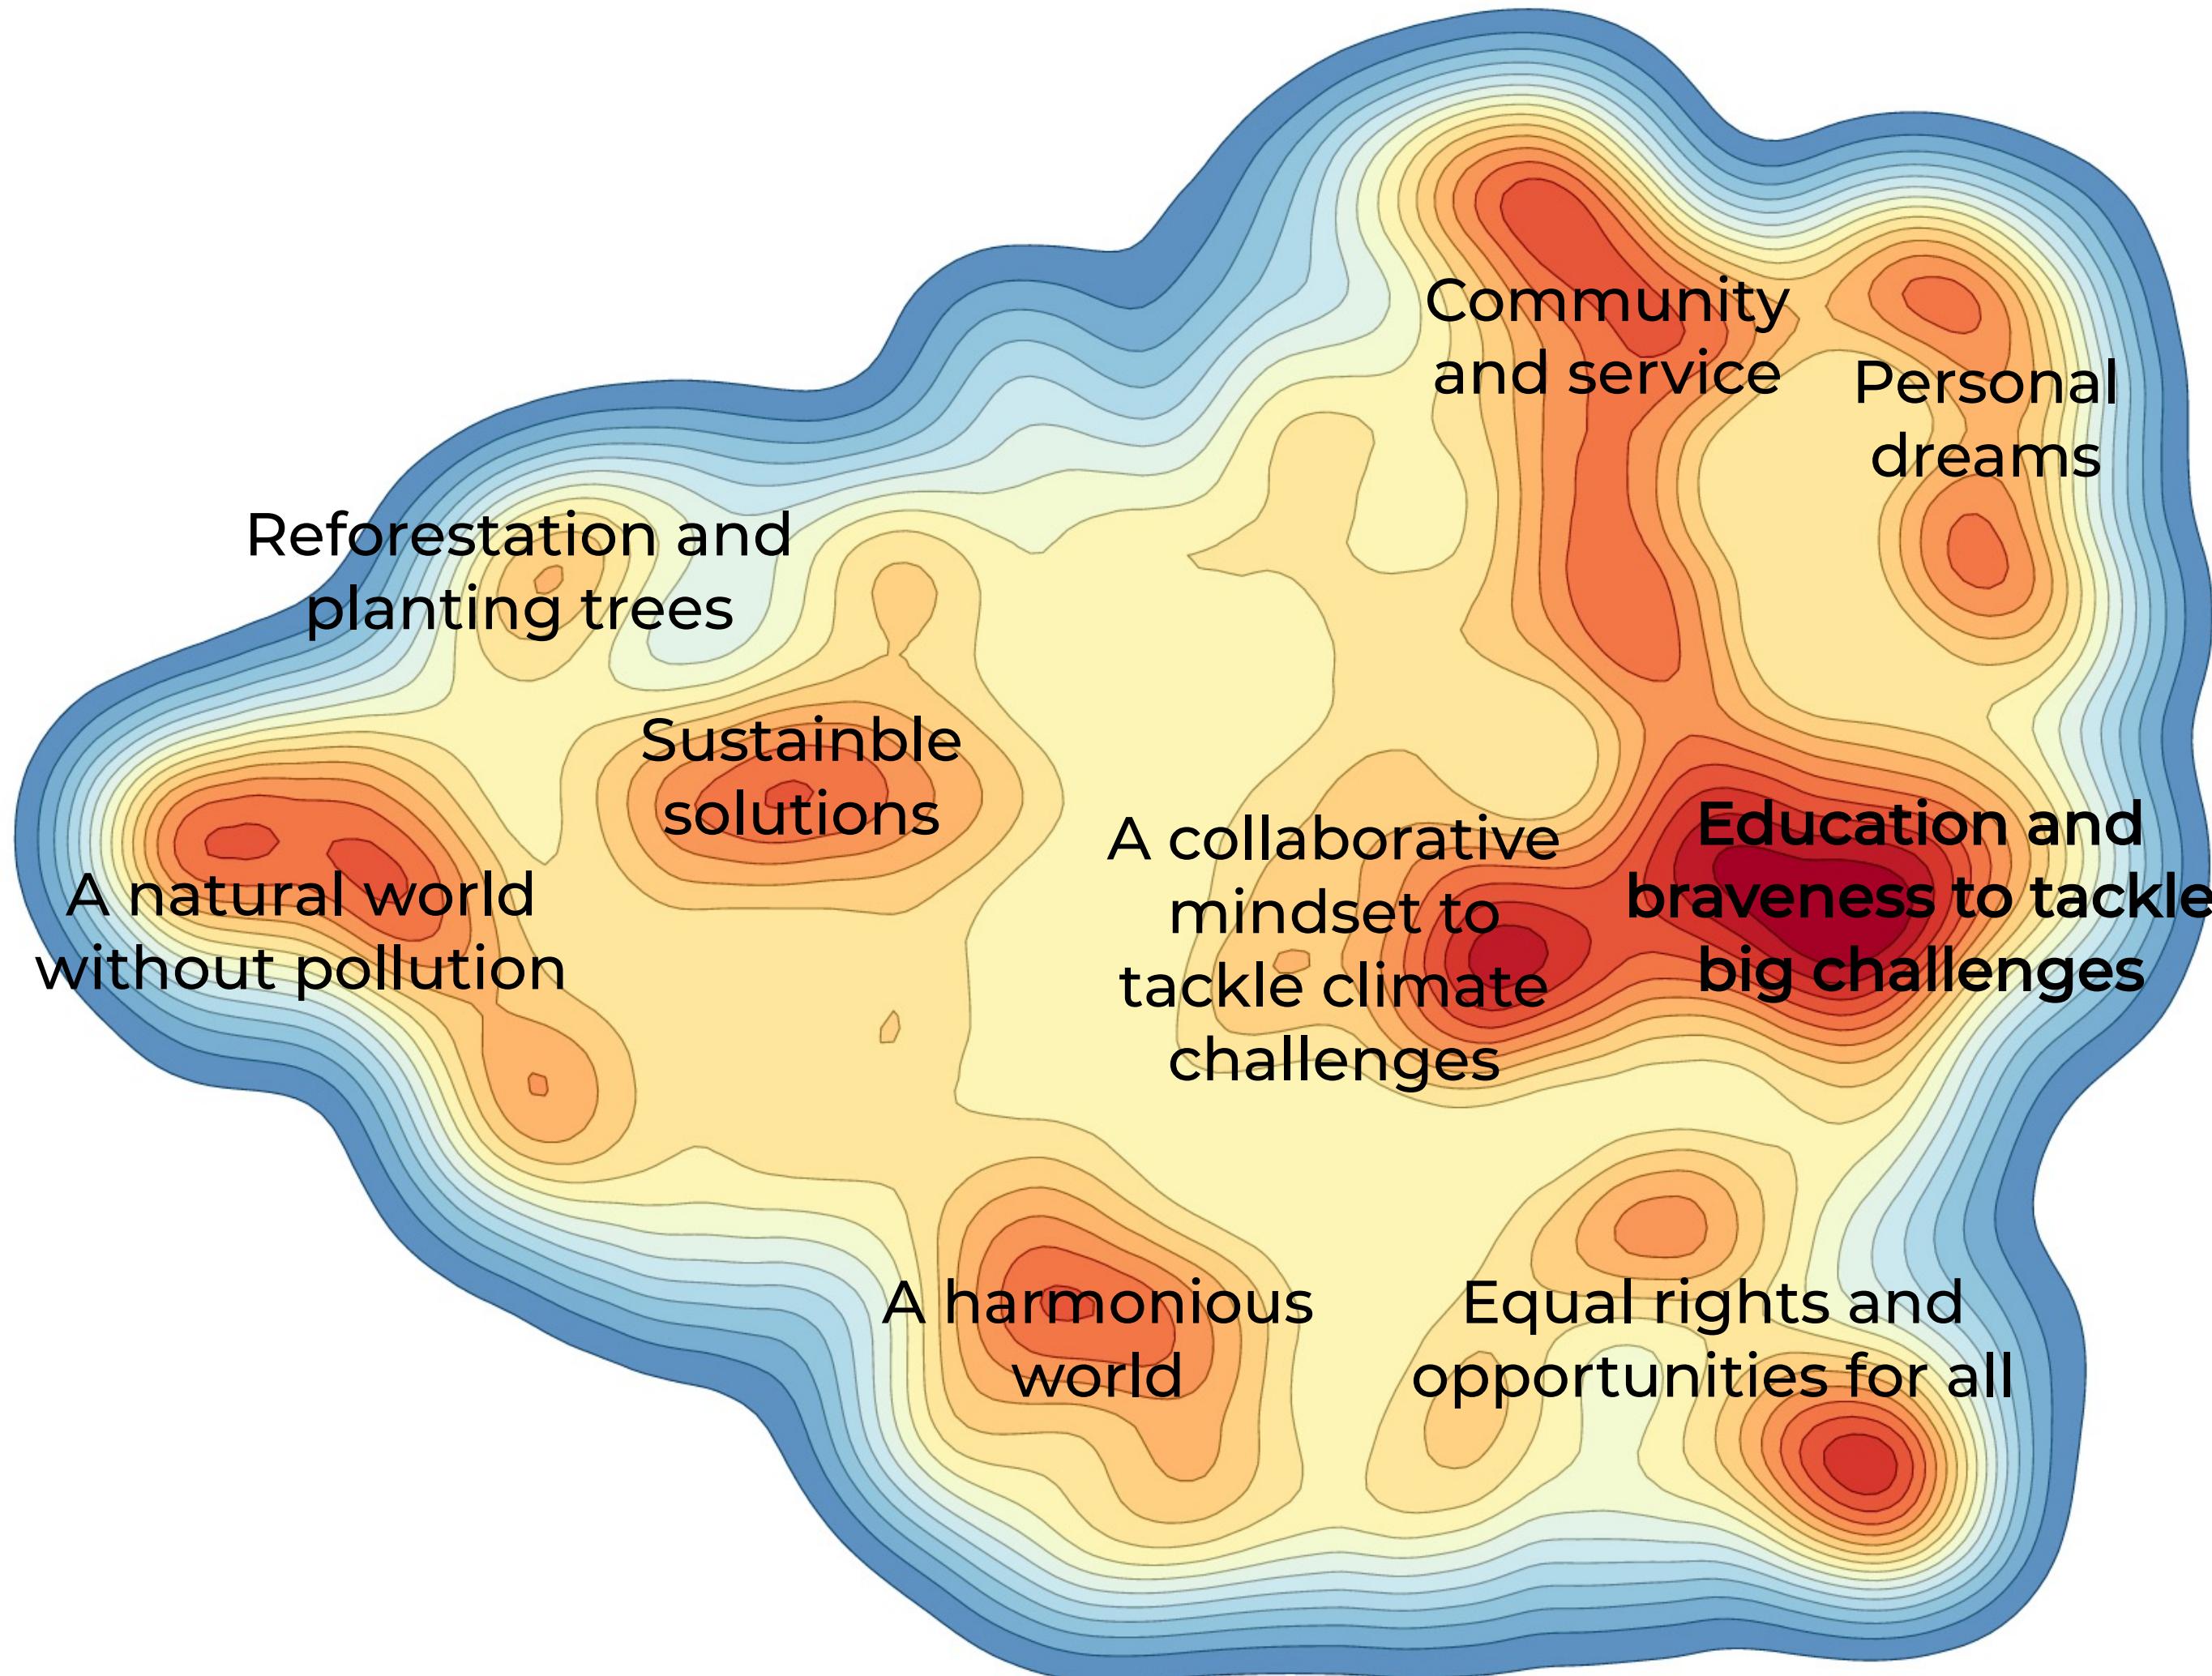

I dream of a world where Nature would be the spiritual Messenger that binds us together. (France)

I dream about a world with people who collaborate to make the Earth more sustainable. I strongly believe that teamwork can help solve this issue not only in 1 country or continent but in the whole world. (UAE)

A planet whose dwellers are mindful about its sustainability and collectively act towards achieving a common goal regardless of their age, location, race, class, tribe and level of education. (Kenya)

Narrative: Education and braveness to tackle big challenges

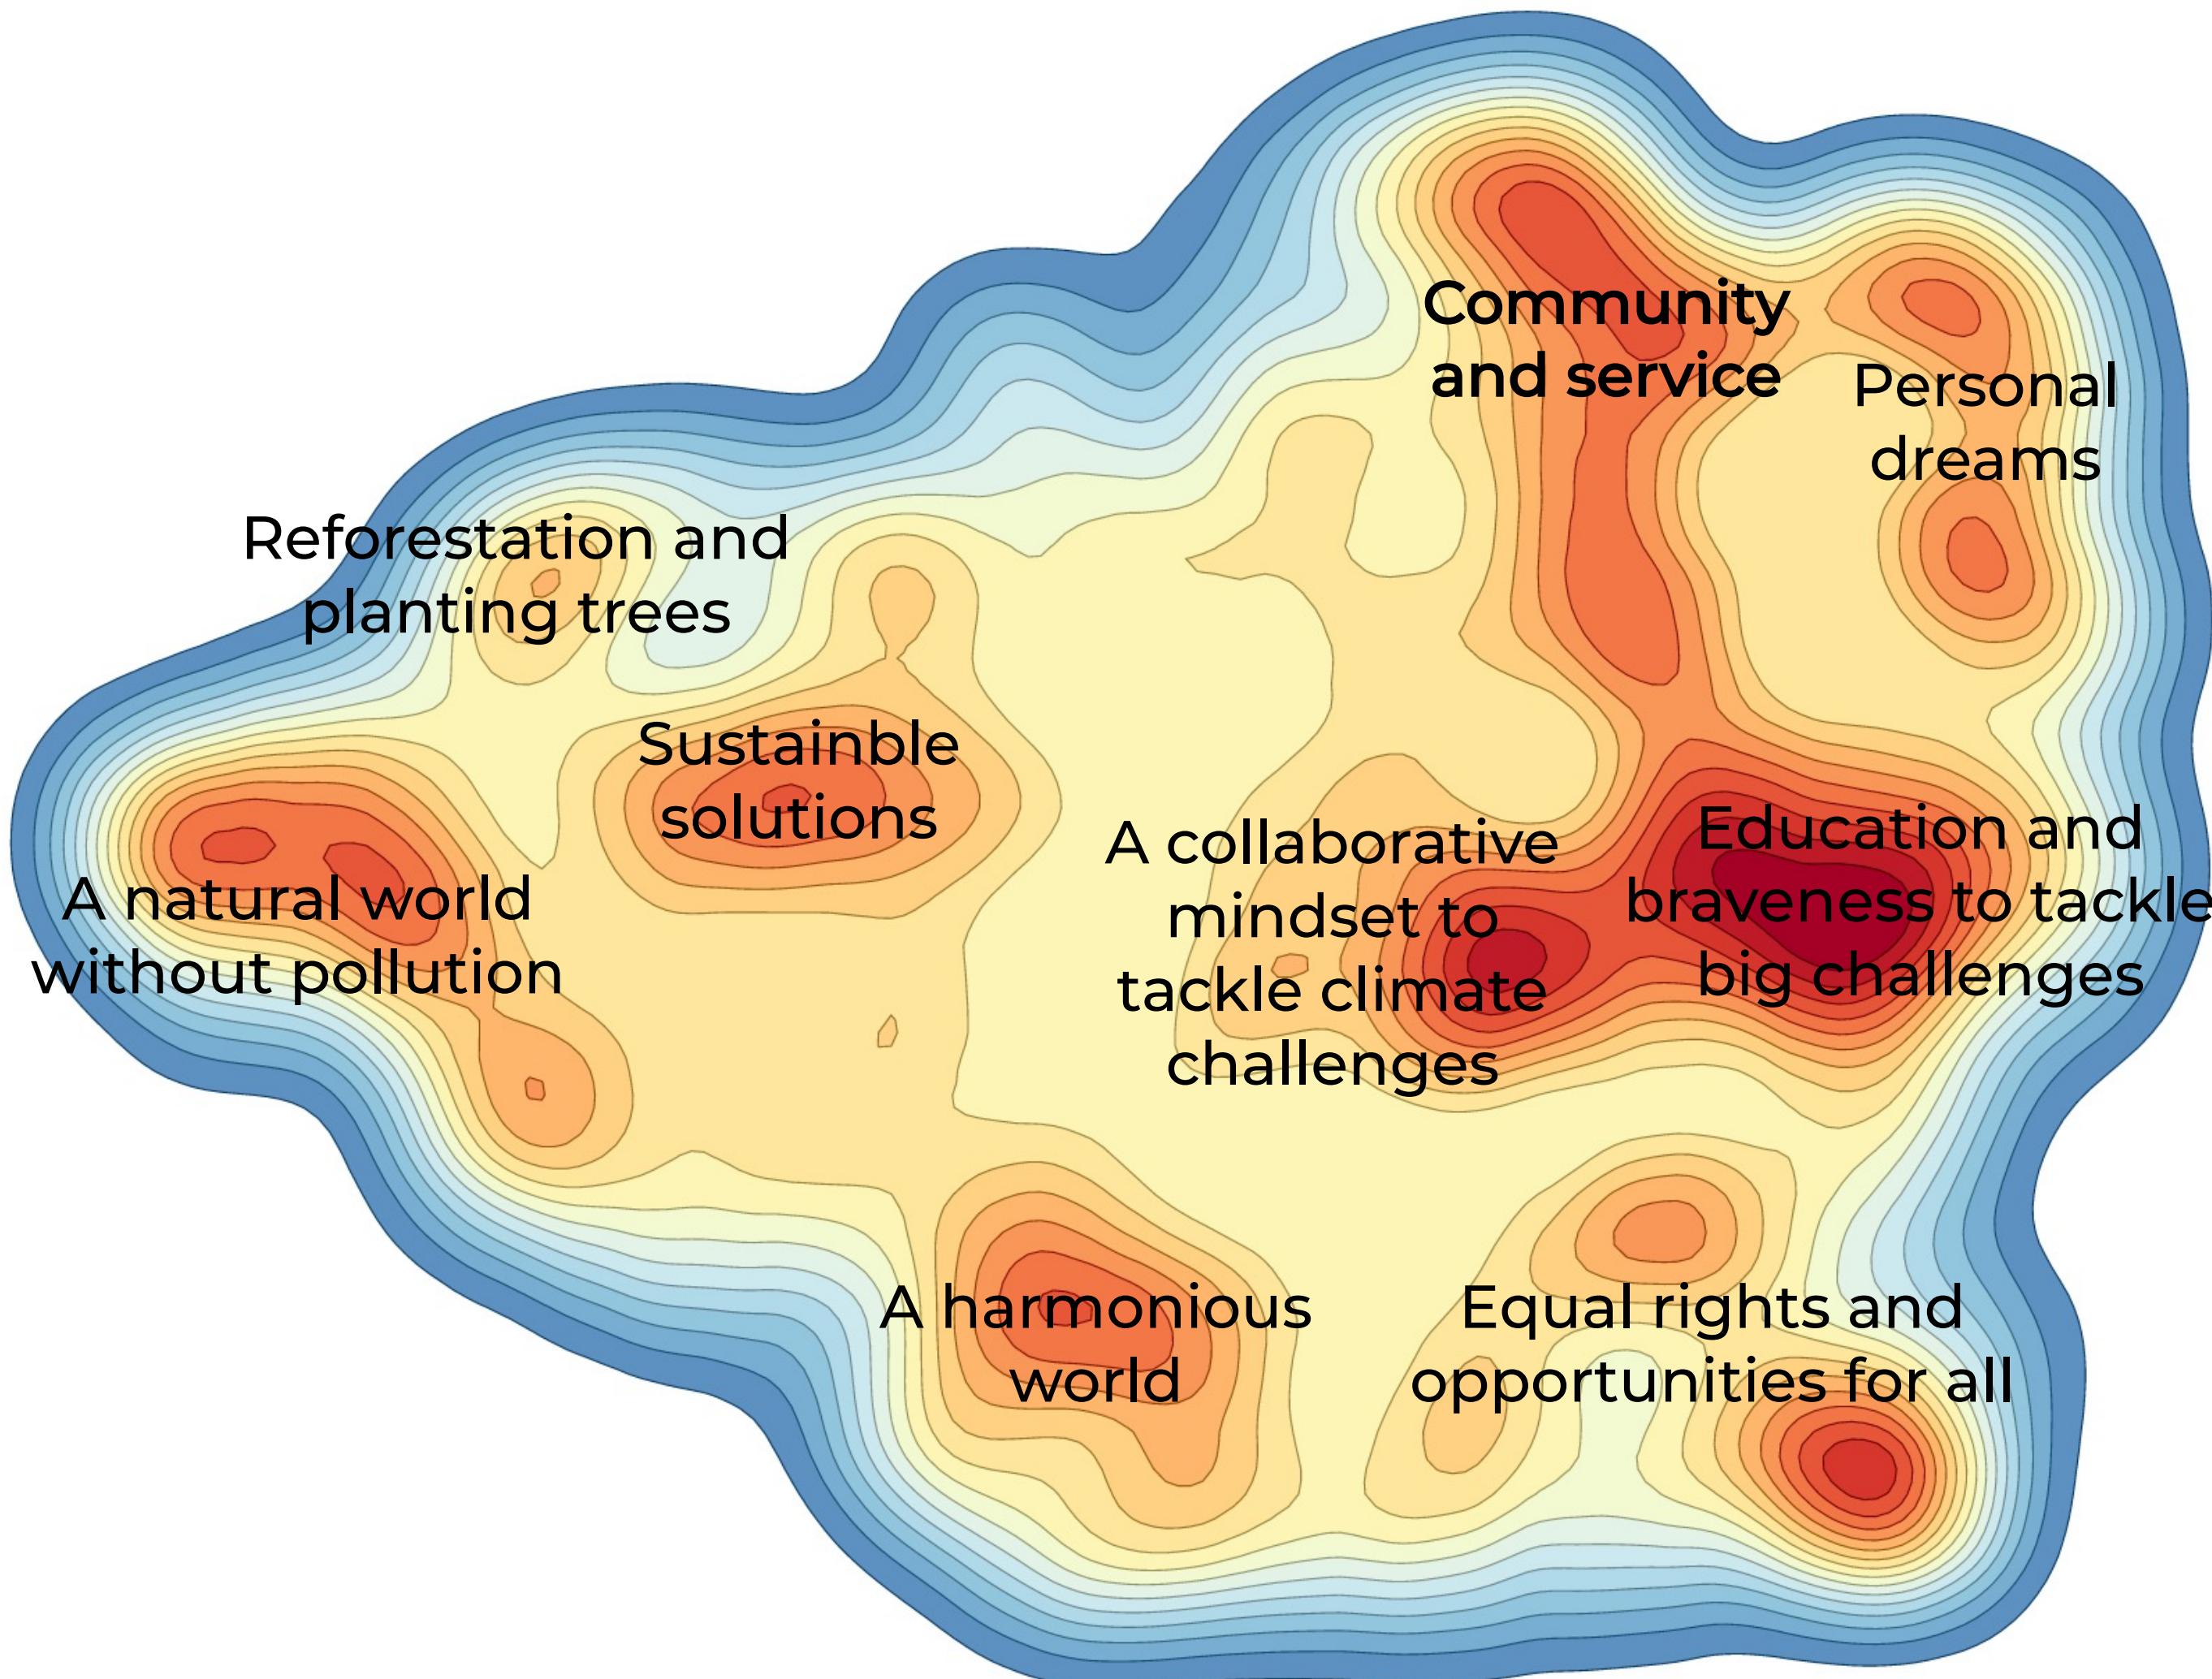

/.../ Also, a society where we become brave, brave enough to open our minds and embrace our differences, where we look at all the opportunities that are arising, thanks to diversity and inclusion. (Sweden)

I dream of quality education. It is known that knowledge is the root of the change of fate. It is the best way to help solve other problems on the world. (China)

My dream future is where people start to act. Sometimes we get lost in planning and the cause gets forgotten. We need brave people to start the real work needed to end inequalities, injustice, inefficiencies and turn words to actions. (Russia)

Narrative: Community and service

I'm dreaming of .../ inviting people in need to feed them. I believe all people have the right to be protected physically, emotionally, and culturally. (South Korea)

My dream is having a community where each life matters. (Uganda)

I dream of a country filled with love, love for neighbor, love for nature. (Uganda)

My dream is to build a hospital and school to help the orphans and the needy and serving God. (Uganda)
